

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE: A NEW Look at Fibromyalgia, Talk with the Experts on April 29

WINSTON-SALEM, North Carolina – April 23, 2015. Join PainPathways Magazine and the National Fibromyalgia & Chronic Pain Association for a new look at fibromyalgia during a LIVE Facebook Chat Wednesday, April 29, at 8pm ET.

Meet expert Victor Rosenfeld, MD, who will answer questions and discuss his recently released Sleep and Fibro study and other fibromyalgia (FM) related topics.

Dr. Rosenfeld is board certified in neurology and sleep medicine, and is currently Neurology Department Head and Medical Director of the Sleep Center at SouthCoast Medical Group in Savannah, Georgia. He graduated from Emory University Medical School, completed a residency in internal medicine at Alton Oschner Medical Foundation, a neurology residency at University of Miami and an electrophysiology fellowship at U.C.L.A.

With numerous publications in the fields of sleep medicine, fibromyalgia, sleep electrophysiology, migraine, neuro-oncology, Huntington's Disease and Guillain-Barre Syndrome, Dr. Rosenfeld is a frequent lecturer on many disease states including sleep apnea, fibromyalgia, narcolepsy, chronic fatigue and more.

Jan Chambers, president and founder of the National Fibromyalgia & Chronic Pain Association, and Rae Gleason, Medical Education & Research Director, are proud to partner with PainPathways Magazine and will also be available for questions.

People in pain, health care providers and caregivers are encouraged to participate in this interactive forum. Questions may be sent in advance via Facebook. Registration is not required and chat details are available on Facebook.

This is the second live discussion offered by PainPathways in 2015. For transcripts of previous chats, subscriptions, “share-able” current and digital editions, visit www.painpathways.org.
